

Offaly History and Comments Policy

The comments areas of Offaly History publications on Facebook etc are open for discussion on the stories we publish. We do not moderate your comments, nor edit comments after they are published. It's worth noting before you submit a comment that you will not be offered an opportunity to edit it, so think carefully before you post and here to fairness.

We reserve the right to remove without notification comments which are flagged and found in breach of our guidelines. Essentially it is about respect for the other person.

Do not make personal remarks about the author of a story, about individuals mentioned in stories, or about others. .

No hate speech

Do not make comments which are racist, sexist, homophobic, offensive on the grounds of religion, nationality or demographic group. Do not make comments which are threatening or harassing or which could be perceived as such.

Do not post defamatory content

Stick to the point

We want our publications to be fora for civilised debate. Offaly History cannot endorse or stand by the accuracy, truthfulness or reliability of any material posted by users in the comments space. Statements made by users of Offaly History publications only reflect the views of that user, and are not representative of the views of the committee or any of its editorial teams.

While we do not and cannot review every comment, we reserve the right to remove any we deem unacceptable without notification. We reserve the right to block at our discretion users who are in breach of these guidelines.
